

The Hybrid Star-to-Tier Mapping System

If a nurse is fantastic but gets a 2-star review because they showed up 10 minutes late due to traffic, their profile shouldn't look like they are a dangerous clinical liability. Conversely, a nurse who makes a critical medication error shouldn't just have their average drop from a 4.9 to a 4.5.

Using the Star Rating for everyday performance and letting a low score (> 2 stars) serve as an automated trigger for the Tiered Disciplinary System keeps things simple for the managers who rate them.

We can divide the stars into two zones: The Performance Zone (3-5 Stars) and The Red Zone (1-2 Stars).

If a manager rates a nurse 3, 4, or 5 stars, the app treats it as standard feedback. But the second a manager taps 2 Stars or 1 Star, the app UI adapts instantly, forcing them to categorise the incident so the backend can trigger the correct investigation tier.

Zone A: The Performance Zone (3 to 5 Stars)

These scores are handled on the nurse's profile to help them improve or show off their skills. It has zero impact on their clinical license.

- 5 Stars (Goes the Extra Mile):
 - What it means: Outstanding clinical care, incredible teamwork, took on extra tasks without asking.
 - App Behaviour: Boosts their "Internal Quality Score." (Maybe unlocks a small badge or priority booking window).
- 4 Stars (Competent):
 - What it means: Arrived on time, completed all EMR charting correctly, and did their job perfectly. This is the healthy baseline.
- 3 Stars (Room for Improvement):
 - What it means: Minor behavioural or operational issues. Late arrival, messy charting, or leaving their station disorganised. Dress Code Violation
 - Unexcused Tardiness / Pattern of Lateness
 - personal phone use on the floor
 - Communication / Teamwork Issues

Zone B: The Red Zone (1 to 2 Stars) — Triggers the Tiered System

The moment a manager taps 1 or 2 stars, the app's standard flow halts. The manager cannot submit the rating without completing a structured incident report.

2 Stars (Minor Incident Under Investigation):

The manager is presented with a checklist of Minor Offences to select from, such as:

- Failure to Keep Accurate and Complete Records of all Nursing Care Provided to a Patient: While a serious legal risk, medical charting errors or omissions require an audit and clinical review rather than an automatic assumption of criminal intent.
- Giving Confidential Information About a Patient to Unauthorised Persons: A major breach of professional secrecy and privacy laws, necessitating an immediate data protection investigation.
- Forcing a Patient to Sign a Consent for a Surgical Procedure: A severe violation of patient autonomy and ethical rights. It requires an immediate review of the hospital's legal and medical protocols.
- Failure to Prevent Injury or Accident to a Patient: Covers environmental/operational neglect (e.g., failing to put up bedrails, leading to a patient slip and fall). This triggers a review of the unit environment and the nurse's situational vigilance.

1 Star (Major Incident Under Investigation):

The manager is presented with a checklist of Major Offences to select from, such as:

- Arson and Attempted Murder: Direct criminal violence; immediately revokes system access and triggers legal escalation.
- Patient Assault (Physical, Sexual, or Verbal): Direct violation of patient safety and professional ethical codes.
- Arriving at Work Drunk: Immediate impairment on duty, which creates an active, high-risk hazard for patient care.
- Misuse of Medication: Includes medication errors, unauthorised prescribing, or potential drug diversion, which completely compromises patient safety.
- Patient Left Unattended: Severe patient abandonment (e.g., walking off a shift without giving a proper clinical handover).
- Neglect to or Delay in Obtaining Medical Assistance for a patient directly jeopardises a patient's life by deliberately withholding necessary escalated care.
- Failure to Give the Required Treatment to a Patient: A willful or highly negligent omission of standard prescribed nursing care.
- Theft from a Patient (or a Deceased Person): A criminal breach of trust, violating SANC's mandate to protect the possessions of a patient.
